Who should attend?

Are you looking for a fresh data strategy perspective, a more practical approach to data science, pragmatic innovation, or an optimized data management plan? These are critical topics that you and your peers will cover in an intensive deep dive into data!

Give me more details!

The Data Summit will fuse best practice presentations on critical data management topics with facilitated collaboration sessions. These participatory sessions will elicit critical feedback and fuel a custom assessment on the current state of your organization's data landscape.

The session will be followed-up with customer interviews to understand how their data strategy best practices have been implemented to provide real-world experience and expertise. The event will conclude with a detailed product and roadmap discussion of Infogix Data3Sixty®, a business-first, all-inclusive, data intelligence platform that seamlessly integrates data governance, data quality and data analytics.

What's in it for me?

Beyond the education and insights on proven data management methods, participants will receive a tailored benchmark study based on the assessments conducted throughout the course of the summit. Attendees will also receive a token that entitles them to a complimentary discovery call to scope out a free or discounted Launch Data Strategy or Accelerate Data Strategy Assessment—a comprehensive Data Clairvoyance analysis of how your organization's current data practices and capabilities measure up against best practices.
